Celebration of SFU Authors

November 1, 2007

Message from the University Librarian

I am delighted to welcome you to this celebration of SFU authors. The Library, with the support of President Stevenson, is pleased to recognize SFU authors who have helped establish the university's reputation as an interdisciplinary institution dedicated to scholarly excellence.

SFU Library strives to be an active partner in research, learning, and teaching at the university. For example, we have established a program to raise awareness about issues such as authors' rights and copyright transfer agreements to ensure that SFU authors retain control of the distribution of their research results without jeopardizing their publishing record.

In addition to purchasing and licencing print, electronic, and other collections, the Library hosts and supports peer reviewed open access journals through the Open Journals System, supports colloquia devoted to related topics, and provides an institutional repository to house permanent copies of research results.

Please enjoy the event, and, again, congratulations on your publication.

Lynn Copeland
University Librarian and Dean of Library Services

This list comprises publications by SFU students, staff, and current and retired faculty from January 2006 to June 2007.

We regret any discrepancies or omissions.
