Abstract
The collection comprises photographs, manuscripts (particularly correspondence) ephemera, books and periodical material resulting from and pertaining to the settlement and subsequent history of Doukhobors in Canada—specifically in Saskatchewan and British Columbia. Items in the collection date between 1886 and 1999. The period 1898-1937 is predominant. The collection is artificial, having no original order or provenance.

Book and periodical items belonging to the collection have been catalogued in the SFU Library Catalogue and (with noted exceptions) are not described in this finding aid. See Appendix 1 for relevant SFU Library Catalogue subject headings.

Digitized images and accompanying descriptions of approximately one third of the collection are available on The Doukhobor Collection website (http://edocs.lib.sfu.ca/projects/Doukhobor-Collection/). Researchers should note that the intellectual organization of the website is distinct from the intellectual and physical organization of the collection.

Preferred Citation
[Item identification], The Doukhobor Collection, Special Collections and Rare Books, W.A.C. Bennett Library, Simon Fraser University.

The Simon Fraser W.A.C. Bennett Library requires clear and proper citations to items belonging to the Doukhobor Collection.

Immediate Source of Acquisition
The majority of items included in the collection were collected by Vancouver collector and investment counsellor John Keenlyside between 1996 and 2000. They were donated to Special Collections and Rare Books in 2000.

John Keenlyside has served as a member of the Friends of the Library Board (W.A. C. Bennett Library, Simon Fraser University) since February 1995 and presided as Chair of the Board from July 1996 to December 2000. Keenlyside specializes in collecting 19th century documents pertaining to British Columbia’s formative history.

Additional donations have been made by Peter Ogloff and Terryl Plotnikoff.

Accruals
Further accruals are anticipated.

Historical Overview

The following historical overview was written by Bronwen Sprout for inclusion on The Doukhobor Collection website.

Doukhobor History to 1930

Doukhobors in Russia
The origin of the Doukhobors dates to 17th and 18th century Russia, when a number of Christian religious sects began to form. The Doukhobors became differentiated from these other groups, and were given the name "Doukhoborets" (which literally means, "spirit wrestlers") by a Russian Orthodox priest. Although the priest was implying that the Doukhobors wrestled against the Holy Spirit, the Doukhobor elders adopted a shortened form of the name, maintaining that they wrestled not against but with the spirit of Christ. Their central belief was pacifism, and their motto, "Toil and Peaceful Life," was reflected in their simple ways, communal living, and hard work.

In 1825, Tsar Nicholas II demanded an oath of allegiance from all his subjects. The Doukhobors, led by Peter Vasilievich Verigin, refused. In 1895, they refused to serve in the military and burned all of their weapons. Starting in 1898, the Doukhobors began to leave Russia, as they faced increasing persecution for their beliefs. Some 7,500 sought refuge in Canada, and most settled in Saskatchewan.

First years in Canada
The federal Ministry of the Interior, under Clifford Sifton, was initially sympathetic to the Doukhobors. The government provided each adult male with a quarter section homestead (160 acres) as "free" land. In lieu of cash, the settlers had to satisfy several homesteading requirements: they had to register their homestead, pay a $10 entry fee, fulfill residence and cultivation duties (including living on the homestead for 6 months of the year), and break and crop a certain area of land. After these duties were completed, the settler would apply for inspection, and, if he passed, apply for a patent on the land. The government provided three reserves for the Doukhobors who came to Canada in 1899, and enacted a "Hamlet Clause" so they could live communally (the Doukhobors did not believe in individual land ownership).

The government also allowed Peter Verigin and two other men to make entry on behalf of the Doukhobors, so that they would not have to make individual land entry.

Land Loss in Saskatchewan
This period of agreement ended in 1906 when Frank Oliver, the new Minister of the Interior, introduced changes to the homesteading regulations that aimed to force the Doukhobors to take out separate homesteads. Individuals were required to claim title and to pledge an oath of allegiance to the Crown. The government cancelled the reserves and threatened eviction if the Doukhobors did not make individual land entries. Doukhobors were also required to become naturalized citizens, and to swear allegiance to the Crown, which most Doukhobors thought would lead to the end of their exemption from military service. The regulations were enforced in 1907, and 2,500 homesteads were cancelled.

Community split
This loss caused splits into three distinct groups. The largest group, the Community or Orthodox Doukhobors, followed Peter Verigin to British Columbia. The "edinolichniki" or "Independents" wanted to live more materialistic lives, and chose to comply with the Homestead requirements in order to maintain their homesteads in Saskatchewan. The "svobodniki" or "Sons of Freedom" also went to B.C. with Verigin, but, unlike the Community Doukhobors, the zealots were willing to use both civil disobedience and violence to achieve a return to more traditional values.

Move to British Columbia
During the years of 1908 to 1912, thousands of Doukhobors moved to the West Kootenays in British Columbia, on privately purchased land held under Peter Verigin's name. During the next 30 years Doukhobors developed large communal enterprises (such as jam, jelly, and honey factories) under the umbrella of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood (CCUB), situated in Brilliant, British Columbia.

On October 29, 1924, Peter V. Verigin was killed in a rail car bombing. His son, Peter P. Verigin succeeded him, and in 1927, he came to British Columbia from Russia to assume leadership.
Scope and Contents

The Doukhobor Collection comprises records generated by and pertaining to the settlement of Doukhobors in Canada (beginning in Saskatchewan in 1898 and extending to British Columbia from 1908) and the subsequent history of their organization, activities, industry, and legal battles. While items included in the collection date between 1886 and 1999, the period between 1898 and 1937 is predominant. The collection includes: photographs; correspondence; financial documents such as bills, receipts, cheques, purchase orders and accounting memoranda; broadsides; newspaper clippings and supplements; ephemera such as invitations, pamphlets and booklets; organization newsletters; magazine articles and books. Items of correspondence and photographs constitute the collection's predominant record types.

Topics and proper names that emerge from the collection include but are not limited to: Doukhobor settlement and land claim processes in Saskatchewan between 1898 and 1918, generating extensive correspondence involving the Department of the Interior (Ottawa), regional Dominion land offices in Saskatchewan, the York Farmers Colonization Company Ltd., and individual Doukhobor settlers; Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, and the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood (CCUB, Saskatchewan and British Columbia); Doukhobor industry and history in the West Kootenay region of British Columbia; Peter Verigin’s 1924 funeral in Brilliant, B.C.; J.A. Forin (a County Court judge in Nelson, B.C.) and his involvement with Doukhobor legal proceedings during the 1920s; the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ (Grand Forks, B.C.) (USSC), and its activities during the 1960s-1990s.

The collection is arranged in 17 series:

- Series I: Photographs
- Series II: J.A. Forin, Correspondence, Clippings, Publications
- Series III: Circular Letters
- Series IV: Peter V. Verigin, Letters
- Series V: Peter V. Verigin [?], Letters
- Series VI: Saskatchewan Land Settlement, Correspondence
- Series VII: Financial Documents
- Series VIII: Various Ephemera and Publications
- Series IX: 75th Anniversary of the Doukhobors in Canada
- Series X: 50th Anniversary of the USCC (1938-1988)
- Series XIII: Centenary of Doukhobor Arrival in Canada (1999)
- Series XIV: Doukhobor Publications in Russian
- Series XV: Doukhobor Letters and Documents in Russian and English
Series XVI: Peter J. Ogloff Photographs and Marje Maloff Interviews
Series XVII: Untranslated Monograph and Other Materials (Mainly Russian)

Arrangement
The arrangement of the collection is artificial and for the purpose of intellectual organization.

139 of the items in the series have been digitized and appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See categories: Photographs, Postcards, and the Makortoff Collection) with accompanying item level descriptions.

Some items carry captions in Russian or English. Most Russian captions which have been translated accompany digitized images on The Doukhobor Collection, website.

Series II: J.A. Forin, Correspondence, Clippings, Publications

1900-[ca. 1947]

1 box textual records (3 publications, 3 newspaper clippings, 1 broadside, 5 letters)

John Andrew Forin (July 20, 1861-September 14, 1957) was a prominent British Columbia judge directly involved in some of the legal battles fought by Doukhobors in British Columbia during the 1920s. Originally from Ontario, he practiced law in New Westminster from 1891-1895 and in 1896 was appointed County Court judge for the Kootenay/West Kootenay District. He presided as a judge until his retirement from the bench in 1928. Forin and his wife Mary Dunn had three daughters and two sons, Isabel, Jean, Mollie, Douglas and Peter.

The series includes letters authored and received by J.A. Forin between 1926 and 1933; three publications belonging to Forin (including Forin’s copy of the 1912 Royal Commission report on the Doukhobors in British Columbia) and carrying his handwritten annotations; British Columbia newspaper clippings dating 1925-[ca. 194?]; one broadside [ca.1947] describing division and strife in the West Kootenay region of B.C. between Sons of Freedom Doukhobors and those represented by the Union of Spiritual Communities of Christ (USCC). Correspondents and authors include: J.A. Forin; Isabel Forin; George Hoyland; H.M. Manson; Aylmer Maude; Alice Nike; George Soukoreff; John J. Verigin; Vladimir Tchertkoff; Leo Tolstoy; L.W. Verigin. The series is revealing of early 20th century perspectives towards the Doukhobors in Canada.

Items are arranged chronologically.

All items are in English.

Several items have been digitized and appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See categories: J.A. Forin, Correspondence; Book, book chapters and articles).

Series III: Circular Letters

1908-1918; predominant 1908-1911

1 folder textual records: 50 sheets; typescript

Series comprises thirty letters and one duplicate, dated 1908 through 1918. The bulk of the letters are dated between 1908 and 1911, with only one letter dating to 1913 and one to 1918. Most of the letters were issued by the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood (CCUB) head office in Verigin, Saskatchewan. Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, appears as the CCUB author in the majority of translated letters dating between 1909 and 1911. Circular letters were sent to Canadian Doukhobor communities to be circulated among several Doukhobor households. Often they consist of directions from the CCUB, such as which livestock to sell, when to clear the fields, or when to come to a meeting. The series also includes letters dealing with the logistics of the move to British Columbia.

Items are arranged chronologically with two undated letters filed last. A third undated letter reports on a meeting held on November 25, 1910 and is filed within the chronology according to this date.

All items are in Russian. Digitized images and complete English translations for 25 of the 30 letters appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See category: Circular letters).

Series IV: Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, Letters

1917-1924

1 folder textual records: 18 sheets, 6 envelopes

Series comprises handwritten letters dating between 1917 and 1924. Letters in the series have been attributed to Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, on the basis of previous consideration and translation undertaken by Anastasia Leontieva. Letters are written on the official letterhead of Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, or on letterhead from the Davenport Hotel, Spokane [U.S.A] or the Hotel Palliser, Calgary, Alberta.

Items are arranged chronologically, by year only.
Digitized images and English translations of 4 letters in the series appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See category: Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, letters).

Series V: Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, [?] Letters

1921-1924

1 folder textual records: 10 sheets, 2 envelopes

Series comprises handwritten letters dating between 1921 and 1924. Letters in the series have been tentatively attributed to Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, [?] on the basis of previous reading and consideration undertaken by Anastasia Leontieva. Letters are written on the official letterhead of Peter Verigin, 1859-1924, or on plain stationery.

Items are arranged chronologically, by year only.

All items are in Russian. None of the items have been translated into English.

Series VI: Saskatchewan Land Settlement, Correspondence

1886-1918

8 folders textual records

Series comprises primarily government correspondence pertaining to Doukhobor land settlement in Saskatchewan. Principal correspondents are the Department of the Interior (Ottawa), regional Dominion land offices in Saskatchewan (particularly the Dominion Lands Office in Yorkton, Saskatchewan), individual Doukhobor settlers, and the York Farmers’ Colonization Company Ltd. (headquarters Toronto) which arranged the land settlement of many Doukhobors in Saskatchewan. Items in the series evidence the legal and bureaucratic side of land settlement and reference: specific government acts and regulations; the granting of permission for ‘entry’ to settle land plots; notification of the cancellation of entry for land plots; liens placed against homesteads; individual settlers’ applications for patent on their homesteads following the payment of liens and the fulfillment of additional requirements. The majority of items are dated, handwritten on official letterhead and carry the dated stamp of the receiving office. Letter enclosures such as official forms are included. Series of correspondence pertaining to specific issues or individual settler cases emerge.
The series is divided into 8 files:
File 1: 1886-1888
File 2: 1889-1890
File 3: 1892-1905
File 4: 1906
File 5: 1907
File 6: 1908
File 7: 1909-1910
File 8: 1912-1918

Items are arranged chronologically.

All items are in English; some carry fragments of Russian.

A number of the items have been digitized and appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See categories: Saskatchewan land settlement; York Farmers Colonization Company).

Series VII: Financial Documents

1917-1937; predominant 1928-1935

2 folders textual records

Series comprises financial documents (receipts, invoices, cheques, purchase orders, accounting memoranda) dated 1917 through 1937. Documents appear to originate in Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Washington [state], [U.S.A]. The Canadian Pacific Express Company, the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood Limited (CCUB, Grand Forks and Brilliant, B.C., various administrative departments) and the Union Commercial Co. (Danville, Washington) are amongst the issuing bodies of items in this series. Some items reveal prices paid for everyday commodities such as fruit, cheese, chocolate and coffee. Internal financial memoranda authored by the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood of Canada Limited, British Columbia Commercial-Industry Branch (Brilliant, B.C.) show prices paid to individual Doukhobors for quantities of wood, fruit and brick. A significant number of items record transactions involving a Sam N. Ziebin (variously spelled Zibin, Zibbin, Zebin, Ziebin).

The series is arranged in two files:

File 1: 1917-1928
File 2: 1932-1937
Items are arranged chronologically, by year only. Items suggesting a clear relationship or of the same type (i.e. receipts of same printed type from one issuing body) have been clustered within the chronological arrangement.

Items are in Russian or English; primarily English.

7 items have been digitized and appear on The Doukhobor Collection website (See category: Doukhobor financial documents)

Appendix 1 Book/ Periodical Items

Book and periodical items belonging to the collection have been catalogued individually in the SFU Library Catalogue and are located as indicated in their catalogue records. Exceptions are indicated in this finding aid.

Researchers should note that the SFU Library Catalogue employs the spelling Dukhobors, and not Doukhobors (as has been employed in The Doukhobor Collection website and in this finding aid).

Keyword Search Terms
Researchers may find the subject heading list available on The Doukhobor Collection, website search screen (http://mercury.lib.sfu.ca/cgi-bin/edocs/Doukhobor-Collection) a helpful source of search terms for use in the SFU Library Catalogue.

Subject Headings
Relevant SFU Library Catalogue subject headings for locating book and periodical items belonging to both The Doukhobor Collection and the W.A.C. Bennett Library main collection include but are not limited to:

Appendix 3  Processing Notes

The collection has been considered and arranged in several stages since arriving at Special Collections and Rare Books in 2000.

Researchers are directed to The Doukhobor Collection / Technical Notes (http://edocs.lib.sfu.ca/projects/DoukhoborCollection/technical.html) and Project Staff (http://edocs.lib.sfu.ca/projects/Doukhobor-Collection/staff.html) for details on the processing of the collection during creation and revision of the website, summers 2000 and 2004.

The following notes describe subsequent processing of the collection.

Arrangement

- Consultation with collector John Keenlyside, library staff and previous project participants confirmed that the collection possessed no original order that might reflected in the existing (pre-July 2001) arrangement and be (inappropriately) disturbed by re-arrangement. The collection has therefore been carefully considered and re-arranged where necessary and as has seemed appropriate—according to new series and file groupings, or ‘tidied’ according to chronology, for example.

- The Doukhobor Collection website’s “categories” are largely based on the pre-July 2001 physical and intellectual organization of the collection. A cross-reference note has been included in the series and file descriptions in the finding aid to point researchers from current series and file contents to associated website categories. While the website category “Photographs”, for example, has been maintained physically and intellectually as Series I: Photographs, items previously assigned (physically and on the website) to “Saskatchewan land settlement” and “York Farmers Colonization Company” categories have been consolidated into Series VI: Saskatchewan Land Settlement, Correspondence (consideration of items in both groupings revealed that a chronological order of correspondence between consistent parties was broken by the previous separation).

- As most previous item groupings have been ‘tidied’ in their arrangement, if not re-arranged into different series and files, the numbering used to name electronic image files in the website database (indicating folder number, an item’s order within a folder, etc.—see the website’s Technical Notes) no longer correlates with the arrangement of items in the collection. This issue primarily concerns future maintenance of the search database.

- Archival paper has been placed between items as appeared appropriate and folders have been re-titled, newly numbered, and re-ordered in the collection’s four boxes. Item level description currently exists only for items included in the website (and appears on the website). Similarly, available English translations of items written in Russian are only available on the website.

- Series VIII through Series XIII
  Items now arranged in these series were largely unordered. They have been considered and arranged in series and files as has seemed appropriate.

Foreseeable Future Processing

No additional research or attempts to further identify items have been undertaken during the creation of the finding aid, due to time constraints. Items have, however, been carefully considered in order to determine changes in arrangement and to describe the collection, series and files. The Doukhobor Collection website has evidently served as an information source supporting the creation of the finding aid.

Further research may suggest a more appropriate organization of the collection, effect changes in stated series and file date ranges, and will most certainly reveal additional topics and names to be noted in series and file descriptions.

Further development of the historical overview will benefit researchers. While items in the collection date as late as 1999, the Historical Overview currently concerns the period 1898-1930.

Standards Used in the Creation of the Finding Aid

The finding aid was created with reference to the Canadian Rules of Archival Description (RAD) / Bureau of Canadian Archivists: Ottawa, 1990. The layout format of the finding aid is largely modelled on online finding aids found in collections such as:

Virtual Library of Virginia (VIVA)’s Virginia Heritage Database (http://ead.lib.virginia.edu/vivaead/cgi-bin/eadform.pl)

California Digital Library’s Online Archive of California (http://sunsite.berkeley.edu/FindingAids/).

Processing Undertaken During Update of Finding Aid

Many additional donations were made between 2001 and 2004. It was necessary to integrate this new material into the existing collection and rewrite parts of the Finding Aid to reflect the Collection’s development.

The series system developed in 2000 and 2001 continues to be an effective way to organize the collection, and little change was made to this system. All new items that fit in existing categories were included in the collection where appropriate, where a category had expanded beyond the confines of a series more divisions were added within the series, thereby retaining some of the original order.

New series were created where necessary and include series XIV-XVII. These series represent new facets of the collection.

Additional materials have also been added to the Doukhobor Collection website, including new categories and new historical essays that explain some of the components on the collection and how they fit in Doukhobor history. In addition, the capability to include Russian text in the website adds to the completeness of the collection.
