

Citation Guide: Chicago

This guide is based on The Chicago Manual of Style (17th ed.) and provides only selected citation examples for commonly used sources, and of notes/bibliography style only.

For more detailed information, directly consult a print copy (call number Z 253 U69 2017) or online version of the style manual, found at <http://cufts2.lib.sfu.ca/CRDB4/BVAS/resource/5971>.

Chicago style is sometimes referred to as Turabian style, which is a modified version of Chicago style, and is outlined in Kate L. Turabian's A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, 7thed, call number LB 2369 T8 2007

Keep track of your document references/citations and format your reference lists easily with citation management software.

Information about select software can be found at <https://www.lib.sfu.ca/find/research-tools/citation-software>

General notes on Chicago 17 style

Chicago style outlines two distinct citation styles (14.2):

- Notes/bibliography style, also known as "Humanities style." Sources are cited through footnotes (or endnotes) and a bibliography
- Author/date style, also known as "Scientific/Social Sciences style." Sources are cited through parenthetical author/date references in the text and a reference list

Please note that this guide covers only the Humanities style.

It is recommended practice, but not absolutely necessary, to cite your sources in both the notes and the bibliography. The practice of including both notes and a bibliography is still common practice amongst humanities scholars, so make sure to consult your instructor.

If you choose not to include a bibliography in your paper or choose to create only a partial list of references, you must provide full details of the sources you cited in your notes. (The first time you mention a work in the notes, you must provide full publication details. All subsequent notes of the same work can be written in short form.) If, on the other hand, your bibliography includes all sources cited in the notes, you need not provide full publication details in the notes since a reader can consult the bibliography (14.14).

Your paper must be double-spaced. It is conventional to single-space footnotes and bibliographies, leaving a blank line between entries.

Every page of the paper must be assigned a page number, including blank pages, appendices, and bibliography. Arabic numerals are centered or flush right at the top of the page.

You need to cite and document any sources that you have consulted, even if you presented the ideas from these sources in your own words (13.1 - 13.6). You need to cite:

- to identify other people's ideas and information used within your essay
- to inform the reader of your paper where they should look if they want to find the same sources
- A citation must appear in two places in your essay (14.19):
- in the notes (footnotes or endnotes)
- in the bibliography (at the end of your paper)

To introduce other people's ideas in text, use the following examples:

Richardson argues, refers to, explains, hypothesizes, compares, concludes;

As Littlewood and Sherwin demonstrated, proved, ... etc.

Use Webster's Third New International Dictionary and Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary for standard spelling references for all Chicago citations (7.1).

You are responsible for the accuracy of all information in your notes and bibliography (13.6).

References in text: Footnotes and endnote (14.14-14.60)

In Chicago notes/bibliography style, footnotes or endnotes are used to cite quotes, paraphrases, and other in-text references (14.14-14.60).

- Footnotes are numbered citations listed at the bottom of each page in the research paper
- Endnotes are numbered citations listed at the end of the research paper

To cite a source, a small superscript (raised) number is placed after each in-text reference. Throughout the paper, these in-text references are numbered in sequential order (14.20). For example:

Mooney found that "domestic violence has, since the 1970s, been increasingly recognized as a social problem."¹

Each numbered reference then corresponds to a numbered citation in the footnote or endnote that provides author, date, and publication information for each source (14.14). The numbers in the notes are full size, not raised, and followed by a period.

Citations in notes are single-spaced (unless otherwise instructed), but there is a double space between entries. The first line is indented.

References in text: Shortened citations (14.108, 14.111, 14.275, 14.29-14.36)

The first in-text reference to a given source must be cited in full with the name of the author/s, title of the work, place of publication, name of the publisher, and page number/s of the cited reference (14.19-14.20). For example:

1. Jayne Mooney, Gender, Violence and the Social Order (London: Macmillan, 2000). 2.

Subsequent notes for sources that have already been cited may be shortened to the author's last name, abbreviated title, and the appropriate page reference (14.25). For example:

2. Mooney, Gender, 131-32.

Immediately following notes that refer to the same source may be shortened even further to "ibid." (short for 'ibidem' - the Latin word for "in the same place") and the appropriate page reference (14.34). For example:

3. Ibid., 341.

Bibliography (14.19-14.23; 14.61-14.71)

The list of sources at the end of the paper or at the end of the chapter is called the bibliography. This list must include all references cited in the text of your paper (14.62 - 14.71).

In the bibliography, entries are listed in alphabetical order according to the authors' last names. If no author or editor is provided, the work's title may be used instead (14.65).

Entries are double-spaced, but single-spacing is used within each entry. The second and subsequent lines are indented.

When the bibliography includes multiple entries by the same author listed together, a 3-em dash may be used to replace the author's name after the first entry (14.67 - 14.70). For example:

Darnton, Robert. "An Early Information Society: New and the Media in Eighteenth-Century Paris." American Historical Review 105, no. 1(2000): 1-35.

---. The Devil in the Holy Water or the Art of Slander from Louis XIV to Napoleon. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 2010.

For more information about how to format your bibliography, see sections 14.61 - 14.71.

Common abbreviations (10.1-10.69)

When books have editors, translators, or compilers, the following abbreviations are used (10.42, 14.72 - 14.84):

- one editor - ed. / two or more editors - eds.
- translators - trans.
- one compiler - comp. / two or more compilers - comps.

For editions of books other than the first, the edition number (or description) and the abbreviation "ed." are placed after the book's title in all notes and bibliographic citations (14.112 - 14.115). For example:

- second edition - 2nd ed.
- revised edition - rev. ed.

How to cite...

Journal article - online version (14.167-14.175)

Retrieved from a database (e.g. JSTOR, PsycINFO, Academic Search Complete)

Comments

- Cite an online journal article the same as you would a print journal article (see 14.167 - 14.174) but, in addition, include a DOI at the end of a note and bibliography entry, followed by a period.
- If DOI is not available, provide a URL of the journal article, followed by a period. A stable URL is preferable to the URL in your browser's address bar.
- Can't find the DOI? DOI Lookup (<http://www.crossref.org/guestquery/>)
- Although Chicago does not recommend that access dates be cited for electronic sources (14.12), certain publishers, disciplines, or your professor may require this information. If that is the case, the date of retrieval should be placed directly before the DOI or the URL. Access dates should be written as follows: accessed December 12, 2009 (in a note) and Accessed December 12, 2009 (in the bibliography) (14.176).

Journal article - print version (14.167-14.174, 14.176 - 14.187)

Note

1. S.R. Slings, "Written and Spoken Language: An Exercise in the Pragmatics of the Greek Sentence," Classical Philology 87, no. 2 (1992): 98.

Bibliography

Slings, S.R. "Written and Spoken Language: An Exercise in the Pragmatics of the Greek Sentence." Classical Philology 87, no. 2 (1992): 95-109.

Comments

- Provide the full journal title in italics, and include full publication details: volume number (87 in the example above), issue number (no. 2) and date. Date may include the month or season, as well as year of publication, (e.g. April 1999 or Spring 1992) (14.170).
- If you are citing an article from a journal with continuous pagination within a volume, or if you include the month and year of publication, you may omit the journal issue number (14.170).
- If the journal volume or publication date is not apparent, state the issue number only, following the comma after the journal title (14.171).
- In notes, only the page number(s), where the cited reference appears, is given (14.174).
- For the bibliography, the page numbers for the entire article (i.e. from the first to the last page) are given (14.174).

Magazine article - print and online version (14.188 - 14.190)

Note

1. Charles Q. Choi, "Brain-Destroying Algae?," Scientific American, June 2005, 34.

Bibliography

Choi, Charles Q. "Brain-Destroying Algae?" Scientific American, June 2005, 34.

Comments

- Weekly or monthly magazines are cited by date (month/year) only, even if there is a volume/issue number (14.188).
- Note that there is a comma, not a colon, after the date in the bibliography entry (14.188).
- Include a DOI or URL at the end of the citation, followed by a period, if you viewed the magazine article online (14.190).
- If the article you are citing was found in a database, provide the database name after the publication details (e.g. CBCA Reference and Current Events) and any identification number in parentheses (14.189).

Newspaper article (14.191 - 14.200)

Note

1. Laurie Goodstein and William Glaberson, "The Well-Marked Roads to Homicidal Page," New York Times, April 10, 2000, national edition.
2. Richard Spencer, "Panda Flees Roof to Roof in China," Vancouver Sun, July 19, 2005, A9.

Bibliography

Goodstein, Laurie and William Glaberson. "The Well-Marked Roads to Homicidal Page." New York Times, April 10, 2000, national edition.

Spencer, Richard. "Panda Flees Roof to Roof in China." Vancouver Sun, July 19, 2005, A9.

Comments

- The essential information to provide when citing a newspaper article is the name of the author(s), the article title and the date of issue, which includes: month/day/year (14.191).
- Page numbers may be omitted (14.191).
- Include an edition statement (e.g. national edition, weekend edition) (14.191).
- Include the URL for an online article (14.191).

- If the article you are citing was found in a database, provide the database name (e.g. Historical New York Times) and any identification number in parentheses after the publication details (14.165).
- Use sentence-style capitalization for article titles (14.192, see also 8.156 - 8.157).
- The city and state or province should be added in parentheses after the name of the newspaper in italics (14.191). For example: Globe and Mail (Toronto, ON).
- If a newspaper article is described in detail in your paper and included in a note, it is not necessary to list the article in the bibliography (14.198).
- If no author is provided, begin the citation with the article title and alphabetize according to the article title in the bibliography (14.191).

Film/film scene (14.265-12.267)

Note

1. Biodemocracy: Making a Difference, directed by Charles Kassatly (Montreal: National Film Board of Canada/No One to Blame Productions, 2002), VHS.

A note for a film scene:

2. John Travolta, "Conversation with Annette," Saturday Night Fever, special ed., directed by William Golding (1977; Culver City, CA: Columbia Tristar Home Entertainment, 1998), DVD.

Bibliography

Biodemocracy: Making a Difference. Directed by Charles Kassatly. Montreal: National Film Board of Canada/No One to Blame Productions, 2002. VHS.

To cite a film scene:

Travolta, John. "Conversation with Annette." special ed. Directed by William Golding. 1977. Culver City, CA: Columbia Tristar Home Entertainment, 1998.

Comments

- Include such information as: creator(s), title, publisher, date and medium (e.g. DVD) (14.265).
- When citing online multimedia, include the same information as when citing a film, but also add an electronic file name or URL and access date if no publication details are provided. If the online material is a digitized version of a performance or published source, then information about the original performance or source should be included in the note and bibliography (14.267).
- Film Scenes (individually accessible in DVDs, e.g. "Conversation with Annette") are treated as chapters and cited by title or by number (14.265). See film scene examples above.

Book - single author (14.75)

Note

1. Carol Shields, The Stone Diaries (Toronto: Random House of Canada, 1993), 342.

Bibliography

Shields, Carol, The Stone Diaries. Toronto: Random House of Canada, 1993.

Comments

- In a note, state the author's full name, starting with the author's first name.
- In a bibliography, state the author's name in the inverse starting with the author's last name (e.g. Shields, Carol).
- The publisher's name may be slightly abbreviated by omitting The, Inc., Ltd., Co., etc. (14.133 - 14.135).
- If a work contains more than one place of publication, only include the first place listed. If the place of publication is not well known or could be confused with another place with the same name (e.g. Cambridge), then add the province or state abbreviation in the two-letter postal code format without periods separating the letters (e.g. Cambridge, MA) (14.129, 10.28).

Book - two authors (14.76)

Note

1. Sandra M. Gilbert and Susan Gubar, The Madwoman in the Attic: The Woman Writer and the Nineteenth-Century Literary Imagination, 2nd ed. (New Haven: Yale University Press, 2000), 103.

Bibliography

Gilbert, Sandra M., and Susan Gubar. The Madwoman in the Attic: The Woman Writer and the Nineteenth-Century Literary Imagination. 2nd ed. New Haven: Yale University Press, 2000.

Comments

- In the bibliography, if two authors are listed, invert the name of the first author and add a comma with "and" preceding the second author's name.
- Spell out "and" in letters - do not use an ampersand "&" between the first and second authors' names.
- If the work you are citing is an edition other than the first, include the edition number after the title (14.114).

Book - three or more authors (14.76)

Note

1. Mitchell L. Eisen, Jodi A. Quas, and Gail S. Goodman, eds., Memory and Suggestibility in the Forensic Interview (Mahwa, NJ: L. Erlbaum Associates, 2002), 65.

Bibliography

Eisen, Mitchell L., Jodi A. Quas, and Gail S. Goodman, eds. Memory and Suggestibility in the Forensic Interview. Mahwa, NJ: L. Erlbaum Associates, 2002.

Comments

- For books with more than three, and less than ten authors, all names should be fully cited in the bibliography.
- In a note, however, only the first author's name needs to be fully cited; the rest of the names can be replaced by the phrase "et al." For example: 4. Bob Evans et al., Governing Sustainable Cities (London: Earthscan, 2005), 12.
- For works with more than ten authors (e.g. in the natural sciences), only the first seven need to be fully cited in the bibliography; the rest of the names can be replaced by the phrase "et al."

Book - organization as author (14.84)

Note

1. Institute of Medicine (U.S.), Sustaining Global Surveillance and Response to Zoonotic Diseases (Washington, D.C.: National Academies Press, 2009), 110.

Bibliography

Institute of Medicine (U.S.). Sustaining Global Surveillance and Response to Zoonotic Diseases. Washington, D.C.: National Academies Press, 2009.

Comments

- An organization as author may be an organization, association, corporation, committee, city, etc. There is no personal author's name on the title page.
- Provide the organization as author in the bibliography even if the organization is also the publisher.

Book - editor, translator, or compiler in place of author (14.103)

Note

1. Marcia McClintock Folsom, ed., Approaches to Teaching Austen's Emma (New York; Modern Language Association of America, 2004), 135.

Bibliography

Folsom, Marcia McClintock, ed. Approaches to Teaching Austen's Emma. New York; Modern Language Association of America, 2004.

Comments

- If there is no author on the title page of a work, list the name(s) of the editor (ed. or eds.), compiler (comp. or comps.), or translator (trans.).
- The abbreviated forms appear in notes as well as in the bibliography.

Book - editor, translator, or compiler in addition to author (14.104)

Note

1. Clara Schumann, The Complete Correspondence of Clara and Robert Schumann, ed. Eva Weissweiler, trans. Hildegard Fritsch (New York: P. Lang, 1994), 189.

Bibliography

Schumann, Clara. The Complete Correspondence of Clara and Robert Schumann. Edited by Eva Weissweiler. Translated by Hildegard Fritsch. New York: P. Lang, 1994.

Comments

- The author's name appears first. In addition, the name(s) of the editor(s), compiler(s) or translator(s) appear after the title.
- In the bibliography, a spelled-out version is used: "edited by", "translated by", "compiled by". However, the abbreviations are used in notes.
- In notes, use the abbreviation "ed." (not "eds.") and "comp." (not "comps.") even if there is more than one editor or compiler.

Book - no author, editor, translator, or compiler (14.79)

Note

1. Holy Bible: Contemporary English Version (New York: American Bible Society, 1995), 5.

Bibliography

Holy Bible: Contemporary English Version. New York: American Bible Society, 1995.

Comments

- If a work does not have a known author or editor, begin the note or bibliography entry with the title, unless the author is listed as "Anonymous."

Book chapter - anthology or compilation (14.113)

Note

1. Leonie Arthur, "Popular Culture: Views of Parents and Educators," in Popular Culture, New Media, and Digital Literacy in Early Childhood, edited by Jackie Marsh (London: RoutledgeFalmer, 2005), 173.

Bibliography

Arthur, Leonie. "Popular Culture: Views of Parents and Educator." In Popular Culture, New Media, and Digital Literacy in Early Childhood, edited by Jackie Marsh, 165-82. London: RoutledgeFalmer, 2005.

Comments

- Start with the author(s) of the chapter. Continue with the chapter title in quotation marks, followed by in (in a note) or In (in the bibliography), followed by the title of the whole book and the editor(s).
- Two editors in notes: After the edited book title, type in: eds. followed by the names (e.g. eds. Anne Carr and Mary Stewart).
- Two editors in the bibliography: After the edited book title, type in: edited by Anne Carr and Mary Stewart.

Book - electronic or online (14.161-14.163)

Note

Comments

- Electronic and online books follow the same format as print books with some additional information at the very end of the citation.
- If you downloaded an electronic book, add the media type at the end of the citation (eg. Kindle edition, PDF ebook, CD-ROM). (14.161-14.162)
- If you consulted a book online or through a database (e.g. eBrary, Google Books, Wiley), add the DOI (Digital Object Identifier) if available, at the end using the format: doi:xxxxxx. If there is no DOI, include the URL. (14.161)
- If there are no fixed page numbers, include a section title or a chapter or other number in place of page names (eg. chap. 10). (14.160)
- It is not required to include the date of access, but you may include one if preferred by your discipline. Include it after the year of publication in the following format: Accessed January 1, 2017. (14.12).

Custom courseware

Custom Courseware packages are compilations of journal articles, book chapters and other materials selected by your instructor. The Chicago/Turabian manual does not give specific advice about citing these materials, so you will have to use your judgment and come up with your own solution.

If you need to cite a source from a Custom Courseware package, here are two suggestions. However, our strong recommendation is to first check with your instructor.

1. Find the full citation where the article, chapter, etc. was originally published, and cite accordingly. The full citations may be included on the first page of the coursepack. If not, search a relevant database or the library catalogue, or ask a librarian.

2. Treat the Courseware package as an anthology, and the instructor who did the compilation as a book editor/compiler. Therefore, treat the article, chapter, etc. as if it was part of an anthology or edited book. Most probably you will not have the page numbers since the Custom Courseware is not a true publication and is not paginated throughout. You will also have to include the name of the compiler, the title of the Courseware, the name of the course (e.g. CMNS 210), the semester (e.g. Spring 2006) and the publisher (Simon Fraser University). Bear in mind that someone trying to find the article/chapter from a coursepack you cited might not have access to the same coursepack.

Comments

- Well-known encyclopedias and dictionaries are usually cited only in notes, with the edition specified but not all the publication facts. It is not necessary to list them in bibliographies. Other subject-specific and lesser-known encyclopedias and dictionaries should include publication details in both notes and bibliographic entries (14.232).
- The abbreviation "s.v." (sub verbo, Latin for "under the word") is used to identify the article's title that is not signed (14.232).
- It may be appropriate to include the author of an entry if the entry is signed (12.232).
- If you cite an online encyclopedia or dictionary, always include an access date in addition to the short form of the URL. This is because online versions of encyclopedias are subject to continuous updates (12.233).
- If the article you are citing was found in a database, provide the database name (e.g. Gale Virtual Reference Library) and any identification number in parentheses after the publication details (14.175).

Lectures, papers presented at meetings, and the like (14.217)

Note

1. Allen Seager, "Women and the Church in New France," History 204: The Social History of Canada (class lecture, Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, BC, January 13, 2011).

Bibliography

Seager, Allen. "Women and the Church in New France." History 204: The Social History of Canada. Class lecture at Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, BC, January 13, 2011.

Comments

- When citing lectures and papers presented, include the following information in the note and bibliography: the speaker's name, the title of lecture or speech in quotation marks and the sponsorship, location and date of presentation.
- If you are citing a class lecture, include your professor's name, title of the lecture in quotation marks, the course number and name and the location and date.

Missing information

In addition to crediting the ideas and work of others, the purpose of citation is to enable your reader to identify or find the sources you consulted. In some situations, you may consult primary material that is missing some of the standard means of identification, ie author, title, date, etc. Use the full Chicago Manual of Style and adapt the examples above in these cases, and bear in mind your purpose when crafting these citations.

General guidelines

- No place of publication (14.132): Use the abbreviation n.p. (or N.p. if following a period) before the publisher's name, if the place of publication is unknown. A question mark may be given in brackets, if the place can be surmised.
- No date of publication (14.145): If the publication date of a printed work cannot be ascertained, use the abbreviation n.d. in the publication details. A guessed-at date may either be substituted in brackets or added.
- Unsigned Newspaper articles (14.199): Unsigned newspaper articles or features are best dealt with in text or notes. Use the title of the newspaper stands in place of the author, if a bibliography entry should be needed,
- Pamphlets, reports and the like (14.220): Provide sufficient information to identify the document even when data on author and publisher may not fit the normal pattern.

For example, here is a citation for an unattributed 1980s concert poster viewed online:

Secondary source (14.260)

Note

To cite a book (Beauvoir's book) referenced in a journal article (Butler's)

1. Simone de Beauvoir, The Second Sex (New York: Vintage, 1974), 38, quoted in Judith Butler, "Performative Acts and Gender Constitution: An Essay in Phenomenology and Feminist Theory," Theatre Journal 40, no. 4 (1988): 519.

To cite an article (Zukofsky's article) referenced in a book (Costello's book)

2. Louis Zukofsky, "Sincerity and Objectification," Poetry 37 (February 1931): 269, quoted in Bonnie Costello, Marianne Moore: Imaginary Possessions (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1981), 78.

Comments

- As the style manual notes, citing sources from a secondary source is not a recommended practice. Whenever possible, the original source should be located and fully cited.
- In the footnote, start with the author and publication details of original work. Add the text "quoted in" and then add the author and publication details of the secondary work, the source you consulted. Make sure you use the correct format for a book or for an article (15.56). The original and the secondary source must both appear in the Bibliography.

Comments

- Include the title and author/sponsor of cited websites in the body of your paper as well as in the notes and bibliographic entries (14.206).
- Website citations should include: author, title, owner or sponsor of the site, date of publication, modification or revision and URL (14.206).

- The title of a website is not put in quotation marks and is not italicized unless it is also the title of a book. Titled sections or pages within a website are put in quotation marks (14.207).
- If no publication, modification or revision date is available on the website, provide an access date (e.g. accessed May 18, 2005) (14.207).
- A blog title needs to be italicized (e.g. Michael Geist's Blog) and the titles of blog entries put in quotation marks. Include also the word "blog" in parentheses if not part of the blog title, the date the blog entry was posted and a URL. Treat a blog entry in the same way you would an article in a periodical (14.206, 14.208).
- References to website content (a webpage rather than the whole website or an entire work) must be included in the notes but not necessarily in the bibliography (14.207).
