WC>2500

Focus your search on longer articles by searching for those with a large "word count" using the WC># format. In this case, I've searched for articles with more than 2500 words.

Optional: You can limit your search to a specific date range if needed.

The results will be sorted with the most recent articles at the top by default, but you can resort them by relevance, which can be a powerful search trick when combined with date limits.

Enter your target company name in the Company field. If it isn't on the list, try entering it in the search box at the top instead: e.g., : WC>2500 and Tesla.

Optional: If your initial search produces too many results, consider adding in a subject term (esp: "Corporate Strategy/Planning") and/or limiting the search to articles in languages that you are able to read.
